House Committee Favors Flood Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President Coolidge is given sweeping power to provide flood control works for the lower Mississippi Valley and the treasury department is authorized to spend $473,000,000 to carry out the project, in a bill the house flood control committee today voted to report.

The secretary of the treasury is authorized to issue bonds for the work if necessary to raise the funds.

All expense for harnessing the Mississippi river and its tributaries which contribute to floods in the lower valley, are to be borne by the federal government, under the bill.

In this respect the committee broke with President Coolidge. He called for 20 per cent contribution by the local communities. The one-man responsibility is understood to meet with the President's approval.

The vote of the committee for reporting the bill was 11 to 6, indicating a stiff fight when the measure reaches the floor of the house.

FRENCH PLAN PLANE ROUTE

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The French government is about ready to put into operation its airplane and ship service from France to Buenos Aires, via Dakar, South Africa, the longest route in the world, according to an announcement today by the United States Department of Commerce.

It links up a permanent route from Paris to Latin America. It was stated, and cuts the distance between the two countries from twenty-nine to twenty-seven days. Most of the way is by plane, but there is one jump by fast motorized ships over a long and particularly dangerous stretch of water.

According to the report, the French government has given the line a subsidy of $2,570,000 to offset any losses during the initial stages of operation.

The line is in seven stages. The route is from Toulouse to Casablanca by airplane (1,850 kilometers) in 13 hours; Casablanca to Dakar by airplane (2,850 kilometers) 36 hours; Dakar to Cape Verde Islands by seaplane (100 kilometers) 3 1-2 hours; Cape Verde Islands to Nordonha (2,290 kilometers) by fast boat in three days; Nordonha to Recife by seaplane (850 kilometers) in five hours. Only mail and merchandise will be carried at the start of the service.

First M. E. Church Holds Prayer Day

The World Day of Prayer, will be observed in Richmond at the First Methodist Episcopal church Friday, February 24. The Women's Missionary Society has the various Protestant churches will participate on the program.

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. THE JAZZ SINGER, starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Cantor Rabinowitz has trained his son, Jackie, to sing the Hebrew songs of the Synagogue. On the Eve of the Day of Atonement he finds Jackie singing ragtime in a "peer garden." He scolds the child and Jackie runs away. Ten years elapse. Jackie, now Jack Robin, a jazz singer, down on his luck, meets Mary Dale, a dancer, who obtains a part for him in her vaudeville act. While playing Chicago, Mary receives an offer to star in a New York show. Jack is broken-hearted at seeing her leave. Back in the Ghetto it is the Cantor's birthday and his friends bring him gifts.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

"Thank you, thank you, Clarence," Mrs. Rabinowitz took the parcel and examined it eagerly. "The present I'll give him, but the words I could never say. What is it?" she questioned, poking at the bundle with curious fingers.

"I'll show you," Clarence began to open the choir's gift proudly. "See, it's a praying shawl!" He held up the wide scarf.

"A praying shawl! So! Is very nice, Clarence," Mrs. Rabinowitz was examining the material with her fingers. "I'll give—Sah!" she cautioned. "I hear the Cantor. Quick!" With fumbling fingers she unwrapped the parcel and hid it in the sideboard drawer just as the Cantor opened the bedroom door and entered the room.

"Mr. Kahn," The Cantor addressed his one-time pupil. "Good evening, Cantor," Clarence answered, a little confused.

"Well, you came to see me?" "Ah—well—ah—I—I graduate from City College in a few days."

Mrs. Rabinowitz since more took up her housewifely duties. But as she heard the Cantor's steps dying away she took a telegram from her bosom and kissed it. Once more she opened it and looked longingly on the wording. Though she was unable to read it, she knew every word by heart. Three weeks it had been since she had heard from Jackie in Chicago, and now this telegram—home—in a few days! She kissed the signature lovingly, and then reached up on a high shelf and brought down a vase. From the vase she produced a packet of letters, tied with a little blue ribbon. She untied the package tenderly and placed the write on the top, and then retired them.

Through the open window came the sound of a hurdy hurdy. An operatic air rolled to a climatic ending and changed to a fast tune. Mrs. Rabinowitz heard the music and smiled. It sounded so homelike and happy and fitted to her mood of exaltation. She took some pennies from a glass on the sideboard and rolled them up in a ball. She leaned out of the window and threw the little offering into the street. She listened for a while, and then as the organ grinder picked up his music box and moved on, she went back to her sewing and cooking. And as she moved about she hummed a song.

CHAPTER X

As Mrs. Rabinowitz was busy herself about the kitchen a young man drove up before the house in a taxi. The children in the street hurried forward, crowding around and opening the door, expectant of a few pennies reward. The young man jumped out, bringing with him a traveling bag and a cane. He paid his fare, handed some change to the children and walked briskly into the house. He knocked several times at the Rabinowitz apartment, but when he received no answer he tried the door. It opened and Jack Robin stepped into his old home for the first time in ten years.

Jack looked about him, slightly puzzled. It all seemed so real, so familiar, yet so unreal. It was as though he were waking from some kind of strange dream. He set his bag and stick down on a chair and straightened his tie. But his entrance brought Mrs. Rabinowitz from her kitchen. At the same time she came into the room and Jack turned quickly, and mother and son faced each other. There was a moment's silence. Then—

"Mama! Mama!" "Jackie! My darling!" "Mama! My darling!"

Swift as a flash the two were in each other's arms, their voices breaking; smiles and tears coming alternately and together. At last Jack stood back, holding his mother at arm's length and gazing at her face.

"Mama, you don't look a day older—just like a chicken." Jack broke the tension with a jest, but his eyes were now fixed on his mother to a chair and gently pushed her into it.

SYD CHAPLIN IN COMEDY ROLE AT CALIFORNIA

A ceremonial dance of head-hunters in the trackless African jungle is one of the extraordinary features of Warner Bros. production of "The Missing Link," starring Syd Chaplin and directed by Charles F. Reisner.

In this, his latest and greatest mirthquake, Syd starts out as a timid, temperamental young fellow who has become a down-and-out, the butt of the world's jokes and kicks. One day on the London docks things begin to happen to him and before he realizes it he is on a liner bound for Africa as a big game hunter noted for bravery. Syd and the man who has changed places with him, to avoid the attentions of a girl, are on no ordinary big game expedition but are off to capture "The Missing Link" himself.

So important is the mission that envious rivals have determined to do away with the famous hunter. It wasn't in their plan to scare him to death, but as things developed it became apparent that that would most likely be the manner of his demise. Now the least of these fears was his initiation into a tribe of huge and ferocious head-hunting cannibals. Imagine yourself the center of a ring of black, swaying, naked savages brandishing their weapons and working themselves up to an irresponsible frenzy to the word and monotonous thumping of tom-toms. Not a bit funny to the victim perhaps—but to the spectator, wait until you see it on the screen.

Syd Chaplin in "The Missing Link," a Warner Bros. production coming to the California theatre today for a run of two days.

Other features include another story of "The Collegians" entitled "Snapping Home," Screen Snapshots, and current news events.

"Bow low! Bow low! The Shah will soon be here!"—GARDEN OF THE SHAH.

SICK HEADACHE

Be suspicious of persistent sick headaches, dizzy spells or floating specks before the eyes. They usually indicate a poisoned condition of the system which leads to high blood pressure. Due to our abnormal habits of living we place too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver.

The liver becoming weak or sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in food waste. The whole system becomes toxic then, affecting stomach, kidneys, heart, blood pressure and blood vessels.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men now know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteful form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few tell

Everybody In Richmond Knows "Leo" Persico

An Investment That Follows a Policy of Consistent Interest In Richmond

I know Richmond is all right. I was among the first to invest in and sell Richmond lots when the city was young and small. I have continued to invest, to build and handle real estate in Richmond ever since that time—and I want to be doing the same thing when Richmond is a Metropolis.

I am proud of my latest investment THE HOTEL LEO, because it supplies in the best way what Richmond needs.

I Believe In Richmond
LEO PERSICO

NEW HOTEL LEO TO OPEN FOR BUSINESS TOMORROW IS MODEL OF COMFORT

Opening of the new Hotel Leo, at the hotel ranging from $4 per week up will get its accommodations quickly taken I am sure. I have every confidence that under the management of Mr. Turelas tomorrow morning when the new guests will receive every attention.

Comfort of those visiting guests of the hotel has not been overlooked. The lobby at the head of the stairs leading from the sixteenth street entrance has been furnished in wicker furniture with soft rugs covering the floors.

Persico, since coming to Richmond as a young real estate salesman, has been actively engaged in civic and business affairs. He was "sold" on Richmond himself, so much so that he easily won for salesmen's prizes offered by the Richmond Land Company with which he was connected.

While selling to others, he bought property himself, and is now one of the largest holders of real estate in the city. Homes and apartments have been constructed on the greater part of his holdings as he believes in the future growth of Richmond and has assisted in it.

CONVENIENCES

Each of the 30 rooms will have steam heat, radio connections and hot and cold water. Its location near the Southern Pacific station will offer convenience to the traveling public.

EXTERIOR LIGHTING

The exterior lighting of the building is one of its features. An electric sign pointing to the entrance on Sixteenth street and the lighting of the corners have been tested the past several nights and found satisfactory.

All the rooms have been furnished throughout with new furniture with luxurious Simmons beds insuring comfort.

The walls are stiped in harmonious colors which blend with the color scheme throughout the hotel and drapes have been chosen to bring out the effect.

"It was my aim," said Persico, "in building the hotel, to provide a place where men and women of moderate means could find the high class residence place they desire without extravagant and unnecessary trimmings. The rates

ROACH, VAHEY BATTLE TONITE IN EL CERRITO

By ZOEN DEBS

The strong, seldom-lesening appeal of the humped arena on the minds of Richmond sports enthusiasts should make itself known tonight, when Tim Vahey of San Francisco and "Chick" Roach of Vallejo square off in the eight-round main event of Joe Rossi's snappy fight card at El Cerrito.

Seldom in the history of the Rossi arena has such a card been lined up for one night of action, and the boys who lay down the hard cash need have no fear of their money being wasted.

Since his great draw affair with K. O. Clyde Headrick at El Cerrito two weeks ago, Roach has been training just enough to keep himself in the pink, and promises to be ready for Vahey and the latter's punches when the bell on the last bout rings tonight.

Vahey, since his scrap with Joe Limas several months ago, in which he gave the El Cerrito pride the only set-back of his career, has been making great strides, and according to his manager will enter the ring confident of being returned the victor. He has a record that will stand with the best.

George Matty, sensational San Francisco blonde mixer, with but a slight amount of science, is out for his third straight victory via the knockout route over "Tiger" Bob Robinson, colored, of Denver. It is doubtful if he will get it, as the "Tiger" comes not unheralded. Robinson was slated for the top event, and fighting in the semi-final will be something new to him. The affair will be for six rounds.

In a six-round special event Joe Limas, El Cerrito's greatest claim to pugilistic fame, will attempt to rise another rung on the ladder of ring success when he engages Mickey Dolan, Oakland gamester. Should he hurdle the tough transbay fighter Limas will then surely be ready for the bigger shots. Among the naturals being lined up for Limas is a crack at Manuel Vasquez, Berkeley youngster, who made an impressive showing against Mickey Gibbons of Vallejo last show.

Nile Shaffer, ambitious Oakland boy with but two fights beneath his belt, will tackle a tough opponent in Al McDonald, his fellow townsman. The latter is willing and may provide an interesting tussle for the McClure boy.

Another corner under the wing of Mike McClure, Pete Marshall of El Cerrito, will make his second bow before ring fans in the curtain raiser, he engages Jimmy Reeves of Oakland for four rounds. He won his last scrap via the KO route in the first round.

There will be 28 rounds in all, if the fights go the limit.

Ed Sullivan's SPORT WHIRL

ENGLAND WANTS TO OUTLAW THE K. O.

There is a movement under way in England at the present moment to eliminate knockouts from the sweet science of boxing. Britons feel that if the sport is called "boxing" matches should be decided on boxing. Britons regard the knockout punch as a fluke punch. They point out the injustice of a fighter, outboxed for ten rounds, winning by a knockout in the eleventh round.

There is logic in the suggestion, but coming from England it will have all the effect of Switzerland going before the League of Nations and urging the abolition of sailor caps.

England has just as many knockouts as Switzerland has battleships. Certain prominent members of the House of Parliament are supposed to be sponsoring the proposed British innovation, but a top who buys boots in Piccadilly informs me that Joe Beckett is actually behind the movement. Beckett, I understand, has been lobbying, and has stirred up some support.

Just what Joe Beckett can hope to gain by this belated outlawing of the knockout punch is difficult to see.

Perhaps Joe hopes that eventually all knockouts, past or present, will be erased from the books. This would automatically reinstate him as heavyweight champion of England.

You can understand Beckett's deep-rooted aversion for the untidy knockout wallow. If it had not been for the knockout blow Beckett would have been a pugilistic knockout in Merrie England.

That he is biased is evident. Beckett's supporters in the agitation to outlaw the kyo include Phil Scott, who was knocked out by Knute Hansen, the melancholy Dane; Tommy Milligan, who was knocked out by Mickey Walker, and Ted Lewis, who was kayoed one day in Canton, O., by Jack Britton.

At least it must be admitted that Beckett has gathered together men who know their bridges. They have sampled the kyo punch, they have seen the lights go low and they have heard canaries singing bass. They have first-hand information of what they discuss.

WHAT TO DO IN AN ACCIDENTAL KAYO.

Concede that England is successful in outlawing the knockout punch and you have a pretty problem on your hands.

What penalty will be meted out to the ruffian who deliberately disregards the rules and pins a knockout corsage on his opponent's jaw?

Take it right here at home, for instance. It is at Toledo, O., on July 4, 1919, and Jack Dempsey has just finished knocking out Jess Willard.

Officials of the Ohio Boxing Commission immediately serve Dempsey with a summons. He is brought before the commission and allowed to plead his case.

What can Dempsey say? Even his best friends won't tell him. He is in the same spot as the young lady who again ordered chicken salad, just because she had not taken the Rue de la Paix course in French, five lessons for 80 cents and a 10 per cent discount for cash, and therefore could not read the French menu.

"I'm sorry, gentlemen," Dempsey pleads. "I didn't know my own strength."

So Willard wins the fight although with both eyes closed, his teeth knocked out and with ice packs on his head, he is unable to read the newspaper accounts of his victory.

WALL STREET BROKERS OWN KNUTE HANSEN

Knute Hansen, mentioned above as the Danish pastor who kayoed Phil Scott, represents the efforts of Wall Street to manipulate the Cauliflower Exchange and the curb is manipulated.

Hansen, as I understand it, is the pugilistic coupon of several young Wall Street brokers who are interested in the sport from an academic standpoint. When he clips an opponent they clip coupons. These brokers, impressed by Hansen's build and strength and hitting power, bought a part interest in him from his managers.

The stock brokers defray all of the overhead expense and actually pay Hansen a weekly salary, regardless of whether or not he fights. As yet Knute has not been listed on the "Change, but it is probable that if he ever gets into the money you will find Wall Street trading in "Knute Hansen Pfd."

The stock brokers have become sock brokers, and may go broke in the transaction.

Knute is not worried. He gets a weekly salary, and he has no fault to find with the hours.

BOBBY JONES IS A GILT-EDGED SECURITY

This custom of Wall Street buying shares of prominent athletes might be enlarged.

In the next United States tennis championship you may find Block & Maloney selling shares in Bill Tilden and Francis T. Hunter. Instead of newspaper telegraphers in the stands at Forest Hills there will be Wall Street tickers.

J. P. Morgan & Co. would be able to get some action if they had shares in Robert T. Jones of Atlanta, Ga., in the United States open golf championship.

Finnish bankers could get substantial loans for their country, using Paavo Nurmi as collateral. Rumania used Queen Marie to lift the mortgage from the old Rumanian homestead and the Queen is not even a good pinocchio player.

I am not trying to belittle the influence of Wall Street, you understand.

Ben Block, of Block & Maloney, bought a race horse named Zev some years ago. And Zev won the Kentucky Derby.
